THE AWARD

The Bart Starr Award was created to honor the NFL player who best exemplifies outstanding character and leadership in the home, on the field and in the community. The Award is named after late Hall of Fame quarterback, Bart Starr, who was selected as MVP in Super Bowls I and II, and served his family and community faithfully for 60 years. The recipient is selected by a vote of his peers; the only such award selected by the NFL players. The award winner is announced at the annual Super Bowl Breakfast.

PAST WINNERS

The rich history of the Bart Starr Award includes 12 members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, with at least 8 others who should join them in the future. They include:

- Eli Manning
- Benjamin Watson
- Peyton Manning
